The McGarvey Family

Morgan, Chris, Clara, Wilson
& Greta

“The day started out like any other day for a first-time pregnant mother; I got ready and went to work. However, while talking to a co-worker, I suddenly felt something trickle down my leg. I couldn’t believe it, I peed my pants! AT WORK! I sent Morgan, my husband, a text telling him “you won’t believe what just happened.” We laughed about it and went on with our mornings. I was new to the whole pregnancy thing but I began to think it was odd to randomly pee your pants. I wasn’t nervous because less than 24 hours earlier I had my 24 week checkup and things looked so good the doctors told me not to come back for another month. I guess something made me call my doctor’s office and, while they agreed it was probably nothing, they told me come in and see someone to be on the safe side.

You can guess what happened next. It turns out my bladder was fine but my water had broken. The next call to Morgan wasn’t funny.

The doctor immediately started me on magnesium sulfate which makes you feel like your insides are roasting. I was hooked up to every monitor imaginable, transported by ambulance to a level 3 neonatal intensive care unit (“NICU”), and was put on bed rest in the hospital for what we hoped would be the next 16 weeks. I can’t remember much that was restful about the experience.

2020 Ambassador Family

“The day started out like any other day. One night, about 10 days into my “rest”, I was in a lot of pain. Morgan knows I don’t complain about pain easily and went to find one of the nurses. The next thing I know I’m being pushed down the hallway in my hospital bed to the delivery room. As we were headed down the hallway the nurse looked at Morgan and mouthed the words “It’s a foot!”

Within minutes we were surrounded by teams of doctors and nurses. Clara was born immediately, breach, weighing in at 1 pound and eight ounces. Wilson’s amniotic sac was still intact so the doctors explored the possibility of leaving him in utero. I remember laying there thinking, “are they twins if they aren’t born on the same day?” That question did not need to be answered because the doctors decided to deliver Wilson an hour later after his heart rate dipped.

Delivered through a c-section, Wilson weighed 1 pound 15 ounces. Both needed surfactant and Clara was on a ventilator for 24 hours. Wilson needed oxygen but, amazingly, did not need a ventilator. We spent the next 99 days in the neonatal intensive care unit (NICU), and witnessed two miracles happen under the care of neonatal nurses, doctors, and help from the March of Dimes. Those first days, months, and years were a roller coaster, filled with scarier moments than many first-time parents experience, but we are beyond grateful to have two beautiful, healthy and happy nine-year-old children.

Chris and Morgan know the significant role that March of Dimes research played in helping their children grow and thrive.

From Angie:

My husband, Jonathan and I are honored to support March of Dimes in providing families comfort and support in knowing they can focus solely on the health of their newborn during uncertain times. Having been a grateful recipient of March of Dimes' services with our first born, we know how critical and necessary the services are.

The whole Executive Leadership team is excited to bring you this event in this unique setting. We are once again so thankful for our numerous talented Louisville chefs who have donated their time, effort, and locations to this cause. All the donations given by dedicated attendees have made this event a tremendous success year after year. While everything looks different in 2020, the dedication and passion to March of Dimes' mission does not change. Our Executive Leadership team is confident that the Signature Chefs event will continue the tradition of bringing the Louisville community together to enjoy the best local restaurants while providing support to the families and babies in our community.

Many thanks and enjoy the program.
